

Birding in the Greenbrier Watershed

Black and White Warbler.

Photo courtesy of Gwen Balogh.

To connect to the websites below (in green, underlined), point and press CTRL while clicking your mouse.

Brooks Bird Club of West Virginia

[Leslee: text to describe how venerable this group is?]

See the Club's Birds of West Virginia Field Checklist.

Pocahontas Nature Club offers birding walks and quarterly talks by the experts on a variety of nature subjects. The Club is also sponsoring Stars, Wings, and Wildflowers: A Pocahontas County WV Nature Weekend May 1-3, 2009. For information on the club, or to join, email Sharon Kearns at skwalks AT frontiernet DOT net with "PNC Membership" in the subject line. For information on the festival, call the Pocahontas County Convention and Visitors Bureau at 800.336.7009.

Birding in West Virginia

From WV Division of Natural Resources: bird fact sheets, Partners in Flight program, bird counts, birding maps.

Bird Species of West Virginia, a nice listing in categories, with links to eNature webpages on individual species. From WV Environthon.

Neotropical Birds of West Virginia, a guide from the Wildlife Diversity Program of the WV Division of Natural Resources (DNR).

Cornell Lab of Ornithology, the granddaddy of university-sponsored programs and research on birds. See the lab's Citizen Science site, a guide to how you can contribute to knowledge and understanding of birds. Need help with bird ID? Order the Lab's popular sound-book "Backyard Birdsongs."

The National Audubon Society's mission is much like GRWA's: "to conserve and restore natural ecosystems, focusing on birds, other wildlife, and their habitats for the benefit of humanity and the earth's biological diversity." West Virginia has two local chapters, in Morgantown and Shepherdstown."

eBird, with its real-time, online checklist program, provides rich data on bird abundance and distribution on a variety of geographic and time scales. Join eBird to contribute your sightings! The project is a partnership between the Cornell Lab of Ornithology and Audubon.

Birds of the High Alleghanies, a presentation by Ed Haverlack, wildlife biologist with the Thomas Jefferson National Forest in nearby western Virginia, to Virginia Master Naturalists. [Forthcoming, if he can find it.]

Birding: You Know More than You Think You Do! A presentation by WV Assistant Attorney General—and avid birder—Doren Burrell, given at the Pocahontas Nature Club, July 16, 2008.

[Requested, permission not given yet.]

[Photo courtesy of Doren Burrell (if he agrees)]